June 1: Flower Communion Service: From You I Receive, To You I Give
Rev. Joy Atkinson, Worship Leader

Join us for the beautiful annual flower communion service, a uniquely UU ritual in which we each bring a flower representing the many gifts we bring to the congregation, and each take a different one home, representing the gifts we receive from one another. In this service we will celebrate our volunteers and hear briefly about how our gifts of time, talent and treasure keep the Fellowship going now and in the future.

Following this service there will be a catered lunch, during which members and friends will enjoy food and fellowship, and be invited to make their annual pledge of financial support to the Fellowship.

June 8: The End of Him and the Beginning of Us
Moses Channels, Worship Leader

If scientific knowledge is moving us away from a traditional God acceptance, where do we go from here? How do we now find personal meaning, self-worth and purpose of life outside of traditional religious thinking? I will explore a new way to address these questions.

June 15: Fathers Day Service
Rocky Morrison, Worship Leader

June 22: Joy's Moving Sale
Rev. Joy Atkinson, Worship Leader

This will be the last service presented by our interim minister. Join Joy as she “wraps up” two years of transitional work and “packs up” to move. We will look at what we’ve accomplished together during this interim phase in the life of the congregation, and do a little gazing into the crystal ball, contemplating what lies ahead for the Berkeley Fellowship of Unitarian Universalists.

June 29: Pride in the Fellowship
LGBT Fellowship Members, Worship Leaders

Come join us for our annual Pride service, and show support for the rich diversity that has always been a part of BFUU as members share their personal stories and their hopes for the future.
Words of Joy

Thoughts and Reflections From Interim Minister Reverend Joy Atkinson

I wish to begin my summer well; to do something in it worthy of it and me; to transcend my daily routine...to have my immortality now...in the quality of my daily life. --Henry David Thoreau

The time has come for me to say “goodbye” to all of you. My last day in the office is June 19th, my last day in the pulpit will be June 22nd, and the following day I will be on a plane going to the annual UUA General Assembly in Rhode Island and the UU Ministers’ gatherings before GA.

We have accomplished much together in this past interim year. Looking back on it all—the services, the committee meetings, the small cottage meetings, the developmental tasks, leadership transitions, pastoral ministry, the Visioning workshop, the Country Joe/Hali Hammer concert (an especially memorable event), the various social justice programs and more, I realize how busy we have been, working to sustain this historic and unique UU congregation. We have welcomed 10 new people into membership as of this writing, and a few more have returned to renew their membership. It has been gratifying to see the new people roll up their sleeves and join in, becoming part of the ongoing BFUU story, and to see more children in the RE program than we had at the start of this “church year.” Many people have been hard at work all year helping to keep things running and bringing their creative talents to the many tasks before us.

One thing that is necessary for a departing minister to do, is to say a clear and complete “goodbye.” For twenty-five years before I became an interim minister twelve years ago, I was a settled minister, and though settled ministers must also at some point bid “farewell” to the congregations they serve, they don’t usually start out knowing when the eventual “good-byes” will be uttered. We interims know from the outset that “hello” will be all-too-quickly followed by “goodbye.” But despite the fact that we are “temps,” we come to feel connected to the congregations we serve, as a minister, interim or otherwise, naturally does. I have felt connected to you during this past year. But now, I must sever that connection, and make way for your new minister, Theresa Novak, who will form that special bond with you. It is a bittersweet task, and not an easy one. But I know that I will carry you in my heart to the next congregation I serve as interim minister—the Starr King Unitarian Universalist Church in Hayward, California—just down the road a bit.

I am planning on a restful, rejuvenating summer, between serving here and in Hayward. It has been a good and fruitful, albeit a short, run—more like a sprint. Thank you for all your great support of the work of your interim minister, and your good work on behalf of the Berkeley Fellowship.

May your summer also be restful, and your future bright!
Fondly, Joy
Bios of Some New Members

Rocky Morrison has spent his entire life working in the nonprofit world. He has served as executive director, pastor, hospital chaplain and finance director (among other roles). He recently married his life partner, Dan, on their 20th anniversary. He enjoys gardening, camping and exploring the natural beauty of California.

Dan Tussey married Rocky Morrison last week. He lives in the hills above Richmond with a 13-year old black lab named Buddy. Dan volunteers as a walking tour guide with San Francisco City Guides. He plays piano and enjoys singalong sessions with popular songs from the 1920-50’s. He is a retired public school educator who attended a community church in Columbus, Ohio before moving to California in 2002. He and Rocky have three adult children and six granddaughters.

Sherry Fuzesy
In 1969 Sherry took a class at UC Berkeley in Landscape Architecture to design and build people’s park as a class project. She was nearly expelled for doing so and got arrested when the national guard blocked access to the Park. Upon release from jail, she came to BFUU with other activists for support and help. Over the years, she have come here for humanist meetings and social activism. She left for decades while pursuing a career in Marin County in public health. Now that she is retired, she decided to join BFUU when he saw the film, "Last Call at the Oasis," about drought in California. She decided that a congregation that shows commitment at this depth has her vote, and here she has found support, friendship, community spirit, and human kindness.

Joanna Foley Joanna grew up in the United Methodist Church in a small Tennessee town. Her first UU congregation was in Nashville, TN during the 1960s Civil Rights era. She comes to BFUU from the Fourth Universalist Society in Manhattan. She finds the physical setting here very different from cathedral style sanctuary at 4th UU, but the spirit of warmth, support and respect among the members feels familiar. Joanna’s former pastor in New York, the Rev. Rosemary Bray McNatt, will become president of Starr King in July. Rosemary supported the creation of a local V-Day group to end violence against women and girls at 4thU and appeared in one of its productions of "The Vagina Monologues," and Joanna served as publicist for this group’s fund-raising activities. Joanna has worked as a journalist, editor, social worker/ psychotherapist and substance abuse counselor. She volunteers as a tutor in an Oakland school through Reading Partners, a program she learned about through BFUU. She is married to a retired urban sociologist who is a gardening enthusiast. Their adult children are consumer attorneys living in Burbank, and their two lively grandchildren frequently lure them down south for visits.

Nanci Armstrong-Temple is a 3rd generation Unitarian Universalist, raising two fourth generation UUs, her twin daughters Tallulah and Annabelle. She is married to Carl Temple, who is not a member but who is the son of an atheist lapsed Jew and an agnostic/atheist lapsed Protestant, so they are a perfect UU family. Nanci loves to cook, a social activist and an avid reader. She runs a small business teaching peace through the arts in schools and community centers in the Bay Area.

Nanci felt honored recently to go with Sharon, Doug and Kathy from our RE program, plus several BFUU kids, including Frida and Mira, leaders of the Faith in Action club, to deliver toiletries donated by BFUU members to the Multi Service Drop-In Center near UC Berkeley.

She is looking forward to helping to continue creating a thriving children's RE program by meeting often with the ad hoc children's choir and by creating a middle school RE group. She also is looking forward to adult RE, including small group ministries, and to joining the finance committee.

Nanci sees BFUU as a thriving, loving community with the potential to continue to make a major impact in the Berkeley community, and looks forward to helping to be a part of that journey.
Albert Schweitzer Medal

This medal is awarded to UUs who have participated in a number of church functions “above and beyond the normal call of duty;” who have been church leaders; and who have participated in outreach activities.

Conscientious Projector's Film Series: State of Siege

Thursday, June 12 at 7 PM in the Fellowship Hall — 1924 Cedar St.

Conscientious Projector's Film Series for the 99% presents State of Siege, a 120 minute 1972 French film directed by Costa Gavras, starring Yves Montand and Renato Salvatori. Yves Montand plays Philip Michael Santore, an official of the United States Agency for International Development, an organization sometimes used as a front for training foreign police in "counterinsurgency methods". Santore is kidnapped by a group of urban guerillas. The story is based by Costa Gavras on an actual incident in Uruguay in 1970 when U.S. Embassy official Dan Mitrione was kidnapped and killed. Using Santore's interrogation by his captors as a backdrop, the film explores the often brutal consequences of the struggle between the repressive government of Montevideo and the leftist Tupamaro guerrillas. Using death squads, the government decimates the revolutionary group.

Compassionate Communication
Tuesdays, 6 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall—1924 Cedar St.

FUU is planning a series of classes called Compassionate Communication. It is based on Non-Violent Communication, that has been widely written about. This class series will enhance our efforts in welcoming newcomers to our fellowship and perhaps in attracting new members. The training will improve the quality of communication within the fellowship and make for better relations among the members of our beloved community. It would also make a good prelude to creating a Covenant of Right Relations for our Fellowship, which we don’t currently have.

All are invited to participate in the class series, initially 6 meetings of 1.5 hours each this summer. BFUU will provide a room for the series and a nominal fee to the teacher. Donations by the participants would be appreciated but not required. There are survey sheets at the welcome table at the Sunday service, for you to indicate that you are interested and which times of the week are possible for you to attend. The survey sheets were available at last Sunday’s service and we have already gotten some interested people.

The Reverend Theresa Novak, who will be BFUU's Developmental Minister beginning on August 15, 2014, graduated from Starr King School of the Ministry in 2007. She was born in a small town in northern California and attended the University of California Berkeley between 1968 and 1974, earning a BA in demography and a MA in sociology. Prior to entering seminary, she worked for the Social Security Administration in Richmond, CA for 25 years, primarily in management positions. She served her ministerial internship at the Unitarian Universalist Church of Annapolis, Maryland. From 2007 to June of 2014 she has served as the full time settled minister of the Unitarian Universalist Church of Ogden, Utah. That congregation received national recognition in 2012 as a UUA Breakthrough Congregation.

Theresa and her wife, Anne Spatola, have been together since January 1975, although they were only able to legally marry recently. They have three adult children. Theresa was raised in the Disciples of Christ tradition and describes her religious journey as one that has included Christianity, Atheism, Agnosticism, Humanism, and Mysticism. She has been a life-long social activist and sees great value in many different theological orientations. “The core of what I had come to believe is that life is precious and, amazingly, that “God loves us” in a deep and lasting way. By God, I mean the connection, the life force that is behind what we mean when we say that we respect the interdependent web of all existence. Affirming the inherent worth and dignity of all is just another way of saying all are worthy, all are precious, God loves us.

All of us. Not just some. All of us. It doesn’t matter who we are or what we do. It doesn’t matter what we believe about God or whether we believe in God at all.

All of us. Despite the cracks, the imperfections, - and sometimes because of them - we are all beautiful - we are all worthy of love.

We find religion in the sometimes brief glimpses of recognition, of seeing the connections, of feeling like the path we are taking is the right one. We work for justice, for a better world. It isn’t about great flashes of wisdom, about burning bushes telling us what we had better do. All life, God if you will, calls to all of us all the time really. It calls to us when we hold each other in friendship or in moments of terror, when we weep together with joy or with grief, when we make even a small connection with another human being - just making eye contact with a stranger – pausing to listen to water move against the rocks in a flowing mountain stream. Such moments give us hope, they give us courage, and they remind us that we are human and alive. They weave our lives with other lives, making a tapestry of possibility. True connection is a state of Grace that both beckons us and welcomes us home.

Theresa is also a poet and an active blogger. You can read her blog at http://theresauuco.wordpress.com
